

The Lovell Firm launches $100 million dollar lawsuit in international fraud scheme case.

Posted on April 16, 2013

May 12, 2011: The Lovell Firm launches $100 million dollar lawsuit on behalf of 144 victims of a large-scale, international fraud scheme that ultimately lured thousands of families, individuals and companies to invest in the development of what were supposed to be exclusive, 5-star resorts in the Dominican Republic. As part of its aggressive prosecution of the case on behalf of its clients, The Lovell Firm has targeted the developers, sales companies, law firms, financial institutions and other partners associated with the scheme, involving nearly 25 defendants in over five countries throughout the world. The litigation is ongoing and updates will be provided.
